This is black. My skin is leather.
I was mocked as a child for being too dark, I used to wish I could wake up lighter so I can be called beautiful like my friends.
I used to hate my skin and this made me worthless and unloved. I grew up shy, with low self-esteem, this never helped but taught pain and hate. I saw no purpose to life. No one loves me I would say, but I promised myself, that my kids will never suffer the pain I did. I will teach them how to love their sun kissed skin, their crown of black strong hair and dark beautiful eyes, something I never learnt as a child
